TRINITY SUNDAY

Dear Friends

Dear Friends,

This weekend we celebrate the Most Holy Trinity. (1) The Father, Son, and the Holy Spirit are one and the same God. (2) The divine Persons are distinct from one another. (3) The purpose of the divine missions of the Son and the Holy Spirit is to bring us to share in the life, light and love of the Trinity. Though the Trinity is one of the three greater mysteries of our faith, we can understand and share in the mission.

Just the other day, I thought of my parents, then, I thought about God and how they formed another kind of trinity. Two people coming together with God and allowing God to bring forth life and love into the world.

On Sunday, May 17 my wife Anne and I were at the cathedral celebrating our anniversary of 25 years, with many couples from around the diocese, with Bishop Matano. Couples married for 25 years were the youngest and there was one couple who had been married for 71 years. Bishop Matano said that we allowed God in our marriages and that strengthened our marriages to last. God gives us the strength to love our spouse, our children and everyone else in God's family. Our traditional marriage vows are relevant to everyone in God's family. We love them in good times and in bad, in sickness and in health and honor them all the days of our lives. This is how we share in the mission of the Trinity.

Remember, our earthly trinity began with us, Jesus and the Holy Spirit. However we describe our trinity, or the Trinity, the mission is still be the same.

Are you wired, yet disconnected ?

There was a young man so obsessed with technology that he found himself constantly distracted. This man had mastered multitasking. He could talk on the phone clipped to his ear while surfing the Internet, which was always at his fingertips because he constantly carried a handheld computer. This man watched his flat-screen television with the sound turned down so he could listen to his MP3 player. He ate on the run, making calls during meals. When he exercised, he watched television. He constantly checked his e-mail. The man was wired, yet disconnected. He rarely gave anything his undivided attention. He did not abide quiet, and constantly walked around with ear buds as a barrier to interaction with the outside world. As a result, the man wound up feeling spiritually starved. He felt distant from his friends, yet he rarely looked them in the eye because he kept his gaze glued to his handheld device to check text messages, game scores and the stock market. There was another man also well aware of the benefits of modern technology. This man, however, knew the value of silence and mental space. He turned his cell phone off most of the time and avoided talking on the phone while driving. He checked his e-mail only twice each day, in the morning and in the evening. He had come to see multitasking as counterproductive. He focused his attention on one task at a time. He did not need constant background noise because he felt communication with his spiritual self. He watched radiant sunrises and saw the splendor of the Lord. He attended concerts and heard joy in the musician's melodies. He enjoyed preparing food and sharing it with friends gathered around his table, where the only rule was that all cell phones be silenced.
